Leading Little Clients to a Better Place in Life

Little ones and their families may not be in a good place in their lives when they come to Infant Crisis Services. After the visit, however, they feel better than when they came.

Margarita “Maggie” Gallegos was navigating a difficult chapter in 2009. She was 23 and had just left an abusive relationship that left her isolated from family and friends. Her funds were limited and she was struggling to meet the needs for her two young children, Richie and Romeo.

One day, she drove by Infant Crisis Services.

“I didn’t have anyone else to go to at the time,” she recalled. “This was my last resort.”

Despite feeling a bit nervous and not knowing what to expect, Maggie decided to turn in — and she found what she needed.

“I felt so blessed.”

ICS supplied formula, diapers, food, clothes and toys for little Richie and Romeo. Maggie remembered feeling welcomed, like when ICS volunteers helped load her car.

“It was like ... they were eagerly waiting to support and help me,” she said. “That is what made the experience that much better.”

Maggie was born and raised in Oklahoma. She started working at 15 years old as a “bus boy.” She lived all over the Oklahoma City area before moving to Texas last year with her four boys, Richie, now 19; Romeo, now 18; Roman, 13; and Christian,11.

Things are wonderful now for the family in their home outside of Dallas. Richie works full-time and pays his own phone bill. Romeo works part-time.

“They both like paying for me and their grandma whenever they have a chance. They have good hearts,” Maggie said. “We aren’t struggling. We have everything we need now.”

She is thankful that when she was in need she turned to Infant Crisis Services — and she encourages anyone who needs help to take the same steps.

“Don’t be ashamed. Everyone makes mistakes. The struggle is real. Thankfully, some people want to help. Don’t be scared to leave a negative situation and ask for help. Once you get the help, don’t look back and continue looking for better.”

At Infant Crisis Services, our work is to ensure families like Maggie’s have what they need to keep moving forward to that better place.

2025-2026 Annual Report

Fiscal Year 2026 Statistics

April 1, 2025 - March 31, 2026

Looking around our facility here at Infant Crisis Services, you might think “wow, they sure have a lot of diapers!” Although, that’s true, you might also be surprised by how fast they go.

We easily distribute more than 1 million diapers annually to babies and toddlers across the region. We have just crossed the halfway point of 2026, and we have already given out almost 700,000 diapers.

It’s a sobering indication that diaper need is still very real.

Diaper need (or diaper insecurity) is the condition of not being able to afford a sufficient supply of clean diapers to keep your baby or toddler clean, dry, and healthy. Pediatricians note that diaper need can adversely affect the health and well-being of children and their families. Research by the National Diaper Bank Network (NDBN) continues to show that 1 in 2 families in the United States struggles with diaper need.

The good news? Infant Crisis Services exists to fight diaper need so that Oklahoma babies can go to bed with a dry bottom and families have enough diapers to supply their daycare so they can work.

The better news? Your support gives us the means to supply diapers to babies who need them.

I also take strength in knowing that ICS is part of an ecosystem doing this work that includes the National Diaper Bank Network, local nonprofits and companies, and national organizations. We collectively raise awareness of the issue during National Diaper Need Awareness Week, which this year runs September 14th-20th. We invite you to participate in the drives and activities we have planned and to share our social media posts during the week.

“No baby should go hungry” goes hand in hand with our belief that all babies should have access to a sufficient supply of diapers. I say thank you in advance for your continued support in meeting both crucial needs for our littlest neighbors.

Always for the babies,

Miki Farris

DIAPER NEED
AWARENESS WEEK

SAVE THE DATE: September 14th - 20th

National Diaper Need Awareness Week, now in its 15th year, shines a spotlight on why Infant Crisis Services works so hard to fight diaper insecurity. It is a public health issue that affects more people in the United States than one might realize, including working families.

According to The NDBN Diaper Check:

- 78% of families who struggle with diaper insecurity held paying jobs in the year;
- 1 in 4 parents miss work or school because they can’t afford enough diapers needed for day care;
- And 5.3 work days were missed in the last month among families reporting diaper insecurity.

OUR GOAL:

50,000
DIAPERS!
